

AFTER HOURS

Neil (with partner David Burtka) hasn't seen How I Met Your Mother co-star Alyson Hannigan's new baby yet. "I've been traveling a ton," he tells OK!

Kiddie Menu

Chef Mario Batali cooked up a winner of a party in NYC on May 10, when he hosted a screening of Disney/Pixar's Up to benefit the Mario Batali Foundation. Among the guests: Neil Patrick Harris, Jill Hennessy and Michael Imperioli. "The foundation is about literacy, children's disease research and hunger relief," Mario, 48, tells OK!. The father of two also dishes that the next edition of his PBS travel series, On the Road Again, may be set in Italy and Croatia, and pal Gwyneth Paltrow will be back. "She can eat like a truck driver!"

Mario served gelato as well as meats and cheeses from his restaurant Otto.

A peek inside the goody bag.

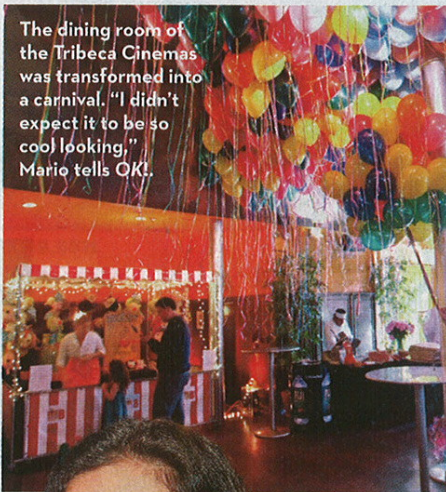

Michael (with Mario and Emeril Lagasse) dozed during the film. "I fall asleep at every movie I take my kids to," he tells OK!. "It's my turn to take a nap."

The bar featured cylinders of classic candy and bags that guests could fill and take home.

Neil and David tried their luck at the games. "We won a stuffed animal," Neil tells OK!

The dining room of the Tribeca Cinemas was transformed into a carnival. "I didn't expect it to be so cool looking," Mario tells OK!

How does Jill (with son Gianni) get her two boys to eat their veggies? By warning them about scurvy! "It's a terrifying tactic, but it's something my parents used on me."

'I ALWAYS TALK ABOUT HOW HEALTHY FOOD IS IMPORTANT'

-JILL HENNESSY

